SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

On the following pages you will find dozens of events happening during Bulldog Saturday. You may attend whichever events you like, but we encourage you to make the most of your visit by attending a wide variety of programs to get to know all things Yale. Student groups have also organized dozens of additional events (often with free food!), and we encourage you to connect with Yale’s most valuable resource: its tremendous student body.

TEMPORARY ACCESS CARD

Your Temporary Access Card (TAC) will grant you access to residential college gates for lunch, dinner, and the Residential College Life Panels. Please return your card to registration at Dwight Hall before 7:00 pm, or mail it to the address on the back of the card.

DINING INFORMATION

Light breakfast will be available for students and their families in Dwight Hall at registration. Dining halls will accept meal cards (provided to students at registration), cash, or credit cards. Students and parents are welcome in all dining halls. Kosher, Halal, vegan, and vegetarian options are available. If you have questions or concerns, ask a residential college dining hall manager. See below for hours and rates. Slifka Center (80 Wall Street) will be offering Kosher for Passover food and welcomes Bulldog Saturday guests.

For alternative options, parents and family members are encouraged to explore New Haven’s many excellent restaurants. Please see our recommendations on page 14.

Master Classes

We invite you to experience some of Yale’s extraordinary academic opportunities during your visit. In addition to our panels, forums, and tours, we welcome you to attend Master Classes – special lectures taught by some of Yale’s best-known professors exclusively for admitted students and families. In the following pages you will find extended biographies for the faculty members offering Master Classes during Bulldog Saturday.

1:30 PM - 2:30 PM
MIND READING WITH BRAIN IMAGING: ARE WE THERE YET?
SSS 114

Marvin Chun is Dean of Yale College and the Richard M. Colgate Professor of Psychology, with secondary appointments in the Cognitive Science Program and the Yale School of Medicine Department of Neuroscience. Professor Chun is a cognitive neuroscientist whose research interests include using functional brain imaging, neuroimaging (fMRI), and behavioral techniques to understand how to improve memory, attention, conscious perception, and decision-making. At the undergraduate level, he teaches “Introduction to Psychology,” for which he received the Phi Beta Kappa William Clyde DeVane Medal for Distinguished Scholarship and Teaching in Yale College, and the Lex Hixon ’63 Prize for Teaching Excellence in the Social Sciences.

1:30 PM - 2:30 PM
MASTER CLASS: KILLING, LETTING DIE, AND THE TROLLEY PROBLEM
WLH 201, Sudler Hall

Shelly Kagan is the Clark Professor of Philosophy. His primary research interest concerns moral philosophy, with a focus on normative ethics. Much of Professor Kagan’s work centers on the debate between consequentialist and deontological moral theories. He has published on the nature of well-being, moral desert, utopia, and the connections between Kantianism and consequentialism. He is the author of four books, including The Limits of Morality, Normative Ethics, The Geometry of Desert, and Death. His undergraduate course, “Death,” available to the public for free through Open Yale Courses, became the most popular online course in China in 2010. His “Introduction to Ethics” course is consistently one of the Philosophy Department’s most popular offerings for students in all majors.
1:30 PM - 2:30 PM
LIES, DAMN LIES, AND A STATISTICAL INVESTIGATION OF OLYMPIC JUDGING SYSTEMS
LC 102
John W. Emerson (Jay) is Director of Graduate Studies in the Department of Statistics and Data Science at Yale University. His primary interests are in computational statistics and graphics, and his applied work ranges from topics in sports statistics to bioinformatics, environmental statistics, and Big Data challenges. He teaches a range of undergraduate and graduate courses from “Introductory Data Analysis” to “Practical Work.” He is the author of several R packages including bcp (for Bayesian change point analysis), bigmemory and sister packages (towards a scalable solution for statistical computing with massive data), and gpairs (for generalized pairs plots). Professor Emerson is a Fellow and Treasurer of the Connecticut Academy of Arts and Sciences. He has served in various leadership roles in several sections of the American Statistical Association, and is an editor of the Journal of Statistical Software.

1:30 PM - 2:30 PM
THE ENERGY FRONTIER AT CERN’S LARGE HADRON COLLIDER
Loria 250
Sarah Demers is the Horace Taft Associate Professor of Physics. Her laboratory uses tau leptons to probe for and characterize physics beyond the standard model at CERN’s Large Hadron Collider. Demers’ current projects include the search for a Higgs boson that decays to tau pairs and a measure of tau polarization in Z boson decays. In addition, she works on the trigger for the experiment and co-leads the ATLAS Data Quality Group. Professor Demers’s courses, which include “The Physics of Dance,” and “Fundamentals of Physics,” are renowned for their interdisciplinary focus and innovative approach to teaching and learning. Professor Demers is the recipient of Yale's Provost Teacher Award and the Yale Poorvu Family Award for Interdisciplinary Teaching.
